

NATO and Europe's 360° security: new perspectives?

Event in partnership with Embassy of Finland in Rome

09 December 2024
15:30 - 17.30

Working Language English

Istituto Affari Internazionali
Via dei Montecatini, 17

The new US administration will have an important but still uncertain impact on NATO and Europe's security. At the same time, the Atlantic alliance is experiencing new internal dynamics, as both Finland and Sweden became members bringing valuable strengths, a regional outlook on the North and the East, and a long border with Russia now under article 5 obligations. In light of the Russian invasion of Ukraine, all allies recognize Russia as the main and most imminent threat to their security, as restated by the Washington summit. At the same time, a variety of threat perceptions obviously persist, with different national views on the priority to attach to the "enlarged Mediterranean" region or to the Arctic. Against this backdrop, the deep-rooted debate on a 360° approach to Europe's security may benefit from new perspectives.

In partnership with

Ambasciata di Finlandia
Roma

PROGRAMMA

15:30 Arrival and registration

16:00 Key note speech

NATHALIE TOCCI

Director, Istituto Affari Internazionali (IAI)

16:10 Roundtable

ALESSANDRO AZZONI

Deputy Director General for Political and Security Affairs, MAECI

KLAUS KORHONEN

Former Ambassador and Head of Mission of Finland to NATO

KAROLINA MUTI

Senior fellow in the Security and Defence programmes, Istituto Affari Internazionali

GABRIELE NATALIZIA

Associate Professor, La Sapienza University of Rome

HANNA OJANEN

Research Director, Tampere University

Moderator

ALESSANDRO MARRONE

Head of Defence Programme, Istituto Affari Internazionali

17:00 Debate with audience